

The Bureau for Global Health of the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) is seeking nominations for the Global Health Bureau Outstanding Citizen Award. The award was created to acknowledge the efforts of U.S. individuals and groups that have an impact on the well-being of people and communities in developing nations around the world.

The award recognizes outstanding individuals or organizations that have advanced USAID's mission of improving the health of individuals and communities in the developing world through a specific achievement. The USAID Assistant Administrator for Global Health, Dr. E. Anne Peterson, will present the recipient with a USAID citation.

- ◆ The award must not factor in any funding decisions or monies granted to any organization or individual from the U.S. Agency for International Development.
- ◆ The awardee must not be an employee of any kind or contractor of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Nomination and Award Guidelines:

- ◆ Nominees must be volunteers.
- ◆ The awardees must be nominated for specific contributions to international health.
- ◆ The nomination must be submitted in writing, preferably via e-mail, with a one-page description of the nominee's contributions to international health.
- ◆ Nominations must be sent to USAID/Global Health Bureau.
